Self-paced Learning and Fourth-year Students' Practicum

Professor Shatha Alsaadi Ph.D.

University of Baghdad/ College of Education for Women/ Department of English

What is self-paced learning?

- In Colin's dictionary, self-paced is an educational system,
- course done or designed to be accomplished at the students' speed.

What do researchers say about it?

Naidu (2008) defines self-paced learning as "a mode of learning that enables individuals to study online or with the help of portable technologies in their own time, at their own pace, and from their own place"(p. 260).

SO

Self-paced learning refers to a learning method where individuals control the speed and timing of their education. This flexibility can enhance comprehension, retention, and motivation

Research Question

- How does self-paced learning impact fourth-year students' performance?

Differences between instructor- based courses and Self-paced courses

Structured learning environment that is led by a college instructor, who sets the pace for the class.

Follow a set schedule.

Self-paced courses

Allow students to take courses at their own pace

.

Engaging and Interactive Content

Thank you